WORLD'S FAIR.

MR. JOHN F. DICKINSON IN THE INTEREST OF CHICAGO.

HE THINKS ROANOKE A FINE TOWN.

He Says Chicago Has Succeeded in Raising $5,000,000 for the Centennial Exposition to be Held in 1892.

Mr. John F. Dickinson, formerly secretary of the State Capital Board of Texas, but now of Chicago, was in the city yesterday in the interest of the latter city's claim to the centennial exposition of 1892.

Mr. Dickinson is a native of Virginia and was educated at Randolph Macon College and the University College of this State, but has been making his home in the west for a number of years, and possesses all the characteristics of a western hustler.

"It is a great pleasure to me to come back to Virginia," said he. "Since I have been here I have met many old acquaintances, some of whom I had not seen for ten years."

"What parts of the State have you visited?"

"I have been to Norfolk, Lynchburg, Charlottesville, Staunton and South Boston, and am seeing the congressmen personally at their homes. Chicago has already opened headquarters at Willard's hotel, in Washington, and I shall be located there during the winter. We have already raised $5,000,000 for the exposition, and if we succeed in getting it, as we hope to do, it will be the grandest exhibition ever held. Chicago is the liveliest and most representative city in the country. It has miles and miles of the finest streets and boulevards, and its hotel accommodations are unsurpassed."

Is this your first visit to Roanoke? I came by here about ten years ago going to Salem. The place was then Big Lick. Up at Staunton and Charlottesville, before coming here, I heard considerable talk about Roanoke and this section being the most progressive part of the State, and I think you have a live bright town. It looks more like a western town than any other place in the State.

Mr. Dickinson left in the afternoon for Lynchburg.

A BARBER ASSAULTED.

His Alleged Assailant is Held for the Grand Jury.

Louis Singleton, a colored barber, was called to one side at the Union depot Monday night by a colored man and struck a heavy blow on the forehead with some sharp-pointed instrument. He was stunned by the blow but did not fall. His assailant, immediately after striking him, disappeared in the darkness. The case was reported to the Mayor, who, having reason to believe that Anthony Shaw was the man who had made the assault, issued a warrant for his arrest and placed it in the hands of Officer Brawford.

Some time yesterday morning the officer came across his man and arrested him. In the afternoon about 3 o'clock Shaw was brought before the Mayor to answer the charge. He was represented by Attorney Morrison, and R. U. Derr, Esq., appeared for the prosecution. The aim of the witness was to prove an alibi, and about six witnesses testified in his behalf. An equal number, however, testified in behalf of the State, and the evidence was such that Shaw was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury at the January term of the Hustings Court.

Lynchburg's Reduction Works.

Mr. J. H. Bartlett, manager of the Washington zinc mines, was in the city yesterday. He says the Reduction Works at Lynchburg are about completed, that two car loads of ore were shipped on Monday and two on Tuesday, and that they would begin crushing ore there in the course of a few weeks, but it would be four weeks probably before they would make any metal. The Reduction Works, he said, were commenced on the 8th day of last May, and eighty-three days had been lost by rainy weather. Ten or twelve men are employed at the mines in Bonsacks and twenty-five or thirty at the works in Lynchburg. The ores obtained at the mines are the carbonates and sulphides of zinc.

A New Paper.

It is stated on good authority that a company has been organized in this city for the purpose of reviving the Saturday Review, a weekly paper edited and owned by Mr. R. U. Derr, and published for several years in this city. This gentleman has been asked to edit the revived paper, which will be purely a literary journal, and will probably do so. It is the intention of the publishers to convert the Review into an afternoon daily before long if circumstances would seem to justify the change. Mr. Derr is a newspaper man of experience and ability, and will doubtless make the Saturday Review a success.

An Addition to Roanoke Society.

Mr. Charles N. Gallagher and bride nee Miss Minnie Burdette, arrived here last night on the Shenandoah Valley train from Old Point, and are stopping at Mrs. Hilleary's on Sixth avenue.

They were met at the depot by a number of friends of the groom, who tendered their congratulations to him and his fair companion and wished them a long life of happiness and prosperity, in which wish the TIMES heartily joins.

A Beautiful Store.

Mr. A. Pickens, the Salem avenue jeweler, has lengthened his store thirty feet and now has displayed there in the most tasteful manner chinaware of the latest and most unique pattern, also all kinds of Swiss carved work, beautiful French clocks and everything in the line of modern art. His Japanese teapots, vases, cups and saucers and picture frames and jewelry will afford the buyer anything desired for a birthday, Christmas or any other kind of gift.

CITY AMUSEMENTS.

Attractions at the Opera House This Week and Next.

Mr. Charles Mortimer, the leading man and manager of "Only a Farmer's Daughter," which appears here tomorrow night, met with serious injuries in the recent wreck on the Virginia Midland, near Alexandria, and last night in Richmond played with a bandage around his head.

Of the play the Richmond Dispatch says:

"The well known emotional drama, 'Only a Farmer's Daughter,' was presented at the theatre last night, with Miss Adelaide Cherie, who has for four or five years past successfully played that part, as Lizzie Stark, the adventuress. Miss Cherie was ably assisted by Mr. Charles Mortimer and a very capable company. They ought to be greeted with a good house tonight, as the play is an interesting one."

Mr. Walter S. Moss, representing "We, Us & Co.," was in the city yesterday. The piece was written by Ezra Kendall, one of the cleverest and most comical actors on the stage, and is calculated to create laughter from the opening of the play to the end.

"We, Us & Co." will be given here on the nights of the 27th and 28th, with matinee on Thanksgiving day.

A TERRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Son Said to Have Shot His Father to Save His Mother.

A terrible tragedy occurred in Tazewell county, about eight miles west of the courthouse, last Monday night. S. C. McNeil, a prominent citizen of the county, was shot by his son, William McNeil, a young man about 22 years old.

According to the report received here, the old man, who was at one time an inmate of the State Lunatic Asylum and was still regarded as of unsound mind, was about to kill his wife, when, to save his mother's life, the son shot his father through the heart.

At last accounts no arrests had been made, and it was thought that none would follow the killing.

William McNeil is represented as being a young man of excellent character and, it is said, he is nearly crazed with grief for what he has done.

THANKSGIVING OYSTERS.

A Big Demand, But a Short Crop This Year.

November, with its balmy days, has considerably bettered the condition of the oyster packers, and they are now shipping the luscious bivalves as fast as they arrive to Northern and Western markets at a price which, while not very lucrative, gives them a small profit. November is considered the best oyster month in the year on account of its open weather. This year it has been warmer than usual, which, perhaps, is the cause for the supply being equal to the demand. If the weather had been cool, packers say that oysters would have been scarce and high.

For it is a well known fact that very few oysters are eaten in warm weather. Norfolk packers were handicapped last winter and early this season by having prices cut by Eastern Shore packers, but as the houses of the Eastern Shore have raised their prices, they are now on an equal footing with them. The orders for Thanksgiving Day, which is considered the best in the year by oystermen for their business, are now arriving, and will cause unusual activity around the houses for the next two weeks. Notwithstanding these favorable conditions, there is no reason for changing the estimate of a short oyster crop, made some weeks ago.

An Amusing Incident.

An amusing incident occurred at Fort Union, Albemarle county, Va., election day. A colored man had been given an order to a store near by for some goods, and he placed it in his vest pocket alongside of his Mahone ticket, which he intended to vote before going to the store. Reaching the polls, he gave one of the judges a folded white paper, which was placed in the ballot box. Arriving at the store, he produced also a white paper, which, on being opened by the merchant, was discovered to be a Mahone ticket. The merchant told him he had no use for such a paper, and the startled darkey exclaimed: "What boss! dat a 'lection ticket?" Being told it was, he soliloquized somewhat thusly: "Well, fore de Lawd, ef I ain't done gone an' vote my own. Well, dis fool nigger ain't got no sense now."

Salem's Boom.

The faith of the public in the strength and solidity of Salem's boom is shown in the fact that the stock of the Salem Improvement Company is selling at $2.50 premium on the share, an advance of 25 per cent. Everything in the sister city is looking up, and it is evident she is making gigantic strides after Roanoke in the march of progress. No one is more pleased at this than the people of this city.

Alleghany Institute.

Alleghany Institute begins to loom up imposingly on the northern border of the city, and when completed will be one of the finest structures in the city. Work on the roof of the building will be commenced in a few days, and while the students may not be able to eat their Christmas dinner there, if the weather permits it will be ready for occupancy early in the New Year.

Will Run to Glade Creek.

Cars on the dummy line will run to Glade Creek, within half a mile of Vinton today, and by Sunday the bridge over the last named stream will be completed, after which travel will be open between this city and Vinton, greatly to the accommodation of the people of both places and greatly to the benefit of Vinton.

Cupid is Backward.

Notwithstanding the growth and prosperity of Roanoke, business in the matrimonial line has not been very extensive so far this year. Only 117 marriage licenses have been issued by the clerk of the Corporation Court since the 1st of January, and of these only seventy-two licenses were issued to white persons.

"I always return from Europe more in love with my own country than ever," says Senator Washburn, of Minnesota. "Europe is nothing but an armed camp."

HUNTING SEASON

GOOD SPORT TO BE FOUND IN THIS VICINITY.

WHAT SOME OF OUR NIMRODS SAY.

The Southwest a Paradise for the Sportsman—Duck, Deer, Wild Turkeys, Quail, Bears, Etc. in Large Quantities.

The hunting season is now fully at hand and men with guns of the latest pattern, followed by thoroughbred pointers and setters can be daily seen getting ready for the wood and field in quest of game.

Roanoke is a busy city, but some of her most energetic business men are noted Nimrods and always find time to go into the country for a day or two for sport and recreation. Sometimes they are joined by hunters from other cities, and boarding the train with their dogs they go to the Southwest, where game is larger and more plentiful, remaining there a week enjoying the exhilarating atmosphere and the hospitality of a people by whom they are always welcomed with their characteristic cordiality.

For those who cannot spare the time or have not the inclination good sport for a day or two can be found in this vicinity, as the success of those who go forth daily testifies.

A TIMES representative had a short chat yesterday with Mr. Frank Coffman, one of the best shots and most successful hunters in this part of Virginia, and learned many points of interest concerning game in Roanoke County.

"It has been a long time since a bear was killed in this county has it not," asked the reporter.

"Not so very long," said Mr. C. "A man in Catawba killed a full grown one about a year and a half ago, and there may be other cases of a later date which I cannot recall."

"No pheasants in Roanoke, do you say?" "Why of course there are pheasants in this county. One was killed on Mill Mountain not very long ago. Yes, there are deer too, and I intend going after them in a day or two. We have all kinds of game to be found in this locality, such as quail, rabbits, wild turkeys, English grey snipes and woodcock with lots of possums, coons and foxes. We even have beavers. Several are caught on Roanoke River every year. The foxes are both grey and red and are sport seen hunting them sometimes. Woodcocks are found in marshy places, and are rather scarce. The hunting season begins on the 15th of October in this county and on the 1st of November in Bedford County. The law on the subject, as a rule, makes the hunting season begin on the 1st of November in counties east of the Blue Ridge and on the 15th of October in counties west of those mountains. As the legislature allows the people of a county to decide this question for themselves there are some exceptions to this rule. Besides the game mentioned ducks are killed in this county in season and sometimes wild geese are shot. If a man kills twenty-five quail in one day's hunt, he is doing very well, I think."

Mr. B. L. Greider is also an ardent sportsman, and it is hard to find a man better posted in regard to game than he.

"The hunting season," said he last night in a brief talk with a TIMES reporter, "begins the 15th of October and closes the 1st of January. There are not very many quail this year. The heavy rains drowned a great many young birds this fall, and places where I killed a great many birds last year I was not able to find a dozen. The best hunting grounds are in Southwest Virginia, along the line of the Clinch Valley Railroad. There is a good deal of game also in Franklin County, squirrels being especially numerous. There is not much game in Roanoke County. It has been too well shot over. Montgomery County is pretty well stocked with game. There are a good many pheasants in it. In Augusta County I have seen as many as forty pheasants in a flock. In fact, altogether, old Virginia is pretty well supplied with game, and with proper protection there is no danger that the supply will soon be exhausted."

The reporter talked with several others on this subject and learned enough to satisfy him that, besides her wonderful mineral, timber and agricultural resources, Virginia, if the necessary laws for the protection of game were enacted, could be made a hunter's paradise. In the west the absence of timber has made vast areas entirely destitute of game, but here in Virginia, where the forests are filled with a dense undergrowth, and the conditions for the security of game exist, and as years go by the hunter will look to the Old Dominion for his favorite pastime instead of going to the land of the setting sun, where the hungry red men and devastating prairie fires have driven all the game away.

Excited Over United States Senators.

By Associated Press. BISMARCK, N. D., November 19. All is excitement and uncertainty in the contest for United States senators. It is stated that Pierce has sixty-five out of ninety-three members pledged, and that more are for him. All conditions should happen to change the sentiment. The fight for the second senatorship is between N. C. Ordway, M. N. Johnson, Judge La-mour and P. J. McCumber. Of these Ordway and Johnson are believed to be the two strongest. An effort is being made to force Governor Miller into the race with some prospect of success. It is believed that if he consents to run he will be elected.

Mr. Gladstone in Favor of Local Option.

By Associated Press. LONDON, November 19.—Mr. Gladstone has written a letter on the subject of local option. He says: "I regard the principle of local option with much favor, and wish to see it promptly tried."

BRAZILIAN AFFAIRS.

A Movement for the Restoration of Dom Pedro.

LONDON, November 19.—A dispatch from Rio Janeiro this morning states that Senator De Fouseca, President of the new ministry, has formally announced the departure of Dom Pedro for Lisbon. Senator De Fouseca also announces that he will continue to exercise supreme executive authority until the country shall have definitely decided upon the new government. Meanwhile the ordinary functions of the administration will continue as under the old regime. The dispatches of yesterday had a reassuring effect in financial circles. Brazilian securities on the London stock exchange today recovered much of the ground lost yesterday, and are quoted from two to three points higher than last night's closing figures.

A feeling prevails that the change of government will not injuriously effect the Brazilian financial obligations. The republicans have proclaimed in all the provinces. PARIS, November 19.—The Figaro says that the merchants in Hamburg have received dispatches from Rio Janeiro, stating that a movement has been started in that city for the restoration of Dom Pedro, and that fighting has occurred in the streets between the monarchists and the republicans.

NONE FROM ROANOKE.

People Coming in Instead of Going Away.

By Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., November 19.—A. I. McMillan, Manitoba government agent here, reports that quite a colony of Virginians, from near Charlottesville, are preparing to move into Manitoba, where they will engage in farming. Among them are several wealthy planters, who have bought land and will move northward, taking their plantation hands with them. Owing to the failure of crops for several years past, it became imperative for Virginians to look for new homes, and delegates, having visited several Western States and Manitoba to find suitable locations, reported in favor of the latter.

Election Law Changes.

By Associated Press. RICHMOND, Va., November 19. The impression is general among the leading Democrats of Virginia that the legislature when it assembles here in December will be certain to make some radical changes in the election laws of the State. The consensus of opinion seems to favor the Australian system, with proper modifications. Not only has Senator Daniel expressed his desire to see such a change made in the existing election laws, but many other prominent men of the same party have taken the same position. Among these are some of the most influential leaders in the State. The idea is that if the Australian system shall be adopted it will be so modified as not to make it mandatory for the ballot holder provided thereunder to read the ballots for illiterate voters. In other words, the modifications to be adopted would not abridge any of the power now possessed by the Democratic party.

Florida's State Chairman Resigns.

By Associated Press. PENSACOLA, November 19.—Hon. W. D. Chipley, has resigned the chairmanship of the State Democratic Executive Committee. He gives as his reason for his action that he is unwilling to have the appearance of jeopardizing the interests of the party or to retain a position any advantage from the retention of which he does not want. His resignation was brought about by Mr. Chipley's having been drawn into a discussion with United States Senator Call, which he says was undesired by him, though unavoidable under the circumstances.

Jefferson Davis' Condition Serious.

By Associated Press. NEW ORLEANS, November 19.—Jefferson Davis had an attack of fever about noon yesterday, but grew better toward evening. His condition is still very serious. No visitors are allowed to see him.

A JACKSON CLUB.

ORGANIZED FOR THE PRESERVATION OF LIBERTY.

THE ADDRESS ISSUED BY THE CLUB

An Organization Having for Its Purpose the Encouragement and Promotion of Patriotic Principles.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 19.—The National Jackson Club, which was organized here yesterday, has issued the following address:

"The perpetuity of republican free government rests in the patriotism of the people. In proportion as patriotism degenerates or is alloyed with mercenary desire does the danger of dissolution increase. The forces that created our government and developed it into self-sustaining strength were evolved under conditions of oppression and tyranny from patriotism unadulterated with a selfish motive, and without the slightest purpose of personal aggrandizement on the part of the patriots who founded, sustained and projected it upon its career. Unhappily evidences of decay are beginning to be manifested which, unless speedily arrested, may result disastrously. Whereas, heretofore men sought to serve their country for the love of country, now they seek first their own gain and patriotic sentiment is lost in the pell-mell scramble for place and emolument. Political parties, all of them, make 'spoils' their first object, and it is gradually being instilled into the public mind that proper reward of the government for the service and devotion of its sons is sordid lucre rather than blessings of freedom and protection. It was created to bestow upon them. When the time comes that it is altogether true that dollars are fit and acceptable compensation to men who do battle for their country, then has our government lapsed into a condition that renders it no longer worth perpetuating. Indeed, it will be incapable of lasting perpetuation. Having lost sustaining principle inevitable disintegration begins; patriotism is swallowed up in the mercenary greed; free government will fall victim to hastening ill that end in anarchy and disruption. The cloud is no larger than a man's hand, but it heralds the storm and is a portent of warning. The situation appeals beseechingly to the patriotic sons of Columbia to come to the rescue. How may danger be arrested? A man lived who by his iron will and executive power hurled back the first great danger that menaced our country. His name is a synonym of undaunted patriotism, and represents a code of patriotic principles to draw the nation back to the contemplation of the sublime character of Andrew Jackson; to reinvigorate pure and loyal principles upon which his great life was predicated; to have all people with unanimous voice reiterate the grand sentiment: 'The Federal Union, it must and shall be preserved,' to reawaken that reverential devotion to the Constitution with which he was imbued; to give opportunity again for patriots to pledge their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to the maintenance of the principles enunciated in that sacred instrument; to teach the great thought that to our country we owe our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor. If need be, in her defense, without other reward than that vouchsafed by her protecting hand. A number of gentlemen from different States and Territories have organized a National Jackson Club, strictly and absolutely non-partisan in its nature, and to have for its purpose only the encouragement and promotion of patriotic principles."

The annual meeting of the club is called to assemble in the city of Nashville on the 8th of January, 1891, under the shadow of Jackson's tomb, on the day he made memorable, and to this meeting all the people of our great country are invited and particularly those who recognize the truths here briefly asserted, and are ready to give aid to a movement that has for its purpose the pacification of politics and the preservation of liberty.

By order of Executive Board. (Signed) LARS D. McCORD, Secretary.

The following officers were selected yesterday: President, Hon. A. K. McClure, of Pennsylvania; vice-president, Hon. Benton McMillan, of Tennessee; vice-presidents at large, John J. George Harris, of Tennessee; Hon. J. F. Johnson, of Alabama; Hon. A. S. Colyar, of Tennessee.
